

Rely on it.

Let's embark on a journey into the deep, navigating the tides of time to an era where the regal echoes of Marine Blue first reverberated. Picture the expansive seas. On its wild and unpredictable surface, the British Royal Navy donned uniforms dyed with a concoction of indigo and black for the first time in the 18th century. Originally, this vibrant shade emerged from the crucible of naval tradition. However, it wasn't long before its allure transcended the confines of military attire, gracefully marching into the realm of civilian fashion and life.

Artists and designers inspired by the sea's majesty – and the men who tamed it – began incorporating Marine Blue into their masterpieces. Before long, the colour adorned the walls of opulent palaces, enhancing the radiance of golden ornaments and stucco to an even greater extent. The elegant visitors of these halls found favour in this colour for their dresses – not only for its deep, mysterious allure, but also for its practicality. Concealing stains and dirt, Marine Blue was a pragmatic choice for attire of all kinds. Until today, it stands as a perennial classic – a neutral canvas that effortlessly intertwines with various colours and styles. From formal suits to casual denim, it possesses a timeless charm that refuses to fade.

As we venture into the realms of design and interior architecture, Marine Blue Premier Matt reveals its transformative power. We created a hue that imparts sophistication and tranquillity, gracing spaces with a sense of depth and elegance. Just as the sea cradles the secrets of the world, Marine Blue Premier Matt cradles the essence of refined living, a silent narrator of fantastic tales written in waves and whispered by the wind, mysterious and powerful, yet serenely calm.

Marine Blue Premier Matt truly comes into its own when paired with weathered wood textures reminiscent of the planks on naval ships, paying homage to the proud origin of this distinguished colour. A combination with light hues makes its depths become even deeper and its riches even richer.

MARINE BLUE PREMIER MATT

Rely on it.

MARINE BLUE PREMIER MATT

Background information:

RENOLIT Marine Blue Premier Matt is a deep ocean blue that signifies power and sophistication. Developed to meet this continuing trend in interior design, blue is a serene colour that often represents calmness and reliability.

Characteristics:

RENOLIT Premier Matt is produced using an innovative Physical Surface Treatment (PST) to create a superior matt appearance.

Application:

Kitchens
Interior Furniture

Perfectly combined with:

Premium White Premier Matt
Oak ENDgrain Delight Synchro

